THE GROWTH EQUATION

Growth needs assets. And assets drain liquidity.

New trucks, a production line, a tower still on paper – every step forward needs assets, and buying them outright drains the working capital you need for salaries, materials and your next project.

Financing turns the equation around: the asset or project starts working for you from day one, and you pay for it in stages from the cash flow it helps you generate.

Paying cash vs financing with Yanal

	Paying cash	Financing with Yanal
Upfront cost	The full price on day one	✓ Largely spread over fixed instalments
Working capital	Locked inside the asset	✓ Stays in your operations
Development projects	Funded from your own capital	✓ Financed in stages, with profit-only payments during construction
Assets you already own	Idle value on the balance sheet	✓ Can be turned into liquidity through sale & leaseback
Ownership	Immediate	✓ Transfers to you at the end of the contract (lease-to-own)

99

An asset should pay for itself –
not drain your cash reserves.

IN FOCUS · REAL ESTATE DEVELOPMENT

Build in stages. Pay profit only while you build.

Towers, residential and commercial projects, land subdivisions, factories – development finance that moves with your construction schedule, not against it.

01

Staged financing

The project is financed in several stages; as each stage is completed, the next tranche is released to fund the one that follows.

02

Profit only during construction

During construction you pay profit only, with no principal instalments draining your liquidity.

03

Principal at completion

The principal is repaid when the project is completed – for example, from the sale of units.

Your cash stays in the project

No principal instalments during construction.

Financing grows with progress

Each new tranche follows a completed stage.

Repayment aligned with sales

Principal due at completion, in step with unit sales.

Sharia-compliant

Structured as a finance lease or Murabaha.

Have a project on paper? Send me the land details, plans and timeline – and we'll map out the stages together.

Subject to credit approval and project appraisal.

IN FOCUS · SALE & LEASEBACK

Your balance sheet is hiding liquidity.

The trucks, equipment, machinery and property you have already paid for hold real value. Sale and leaseback turns that value into working capital – without stopping your operations for a single day.

Our clients use it to:

✓ Mobilise for a new contract or project

✓ Strengthen working capital

✓ Fund expansion
